One million trees to be planted as part of nationwide campaign

By Asyl Salimbekova

NUR-SULTAN – One million trees will be planted in Kazakhstan as part of the nationwide campaign to transform the environment and create a green environment. The campaign partly started on Oct. 12, with President Kassym-Jomart Tokayev also taking part in the effort on Oct. 12, joining capital residents and high-level government officials. In the capital, President Tokayev was joined by First Minister Askar Mamin and Kazakh Prime Minister Aliyar Azarbayev. Tokayev also planted the trees.

“The campaign is being held in all 25 regions,” Mamin told the ASIA TIMES. “It is a national project aimed at greening the environment and improving the quality of life for people.”

The campaign is being state-funded, with state money allocated to local governments to implement the project. The funds will cover the cost of tree planting, including the purchase of trees, labor, equipment, and transportation. The trees will be purchased from local nurseries and nurseries within the region. The trees will be planted in public parks, along streets, and in other public areas.

The campaign is part of a national strategy to create a green environment and improve the quality of life for people in Kazakhstan. The strategy, known as the Green Economy Project, was launched in 2015 and aims to create a green economy by 2030.

The campaign is expected to create 1.5 million jobs and reduce greenhouse gas emissions by 2030, according to the Ministry of Agriculture.

The campaign is also expected to improve air quality and water quality, and to create green spaces for people to enjoy. The campaign is being monitored by the Ministry of Environment and Water Resources, and the Ministry of Agriculture.

The campaign is being led by the Ministry of Agriculture, with the support of the Ministry of Environment and Water Resources, the Ministry of Energy, and the Ministry of Transportation.

The campaign is expected to be completed by 2020, with the goal of planting 10 million trees by that time.
Kazakh-South Korean relations strengthen after top-level visit, says envoy

The two countries granted each other the most-favoured nation status in 1992, there appeared a special opportunity for new projects that came in the form of new programmes. Following the Korean film industry in the world, the two countries' cinematic relations seem to be particularly promising. The completion of the Fresh Wind film production project is a good example of the potential for further cooperation in this area. The three countries' film production companies have a special opportunity to create new business and employment opportunities in the region, while Kazakhstan is a very attractive and promising market for South Korea. The two countries' cooperation in cultural sphere is very promising, as it can contribute to the growth of mutual understanding and respect, which is very important for the development of good relations between nations.

In conclusion, the enhancement of relations between Kazakhstan and South Korea is a positive trend that can contribute to the development of bilateral relations and cooperation in various fields. The two countries' joint efforts to promote mutual understanding and respect, as well as the implementation of new programmes and projects, can further strengthen their ties and contribute to the mutual benefit of both nations.

Kazakhstan and Uzbekistan to assist Afghanistan

The need for development in Afghanistan requires the support of both countries. The countries are working on the establishment of a new programme for Afghan women which is designed to help them establish small businesses and create new jobs. The programme is aimed at helping women improve their skills and knowledge, as well as providing them with the necessary support to start their own businesses. The programme is expected to be implemented in several provinces, including Kabul, Herat, and Kandahar.

In addition, the two countries are also working on the establishment of a new programme for Afghan children which is aimed at providing them with necessary support to access education and other opportunities. The programme is expected to be implemented in several provinces, including Mazar-e-Sharif and Kunduz.

Economy grows 4.3 percent in first nine months of 2019

By Ailda Mirzakulova

Kazakhstan received its highest assessment in macroeconomic stability from the International Monetary Fund in the second quarter of 2019, according to the report. The country’s economic growth rate of 4.3 percent in the first nine months of 2019, compared with 3.8 percent in 2018, is the highest in the world. The report praised the government for its policies and initiatives that have contributed to the country’s strong economic performance.

The report noted that Kazakhstan has made significant progress in implementing the National Development Strategy 2050, which is aimed at diversifying the economy and reducing its dependence on oil and gas. The government has also made strides in improving the business environment, attracting foreign investment, and enhancing regulatory framework.

The report highlighted the importance of attracting private investment, particularly in the non-oil and gas sectors, as a key driver of economic growth. It noted that the government has been successful in this regard, with foreign direct investment inflows increasing by 12.1 percent in the first nine months of 2019 compared to the same period in 2018.

The report also emphasized the role of structural reforms in driving productivity and innovation. It noted that the government has implemented a range of measures to improve the business environment, including the introduction of a one-stop-shop for business registration and the simplification of tax procedures.

The report concluded that Kazakhstan has a bright future, with strong foundations for continued economic growth and development. However, it noted that the country must continue to focus on implementing structural reforms and diversifying its economy to ensure sustainable and inclusive growth for all citizens.

AFC marks World Investors Week with forum on doing business with centre

NUR-SULTAN – Major oil companies plan to launch five renewable energy projects in Kazakhstan in 2020, Ministry of Energy Department of Energy Department of Renewable Energy Sources Head Askar Sospanova announced recently.

“Oil companies such as Shell, Eni, Total and Irena are developing renewable energy projects in Kazakhstan. They will begin to work in Kazakhstan in the near future,” he noted. “It shows that these stable companies are interested in Kazakhstan and its potential.”

The projects plan to build five renewable energy facilities with a total capacity of more than 930 megawatts.

At an alumni meeting he presented his country’s investment climate, with the new aircraft offering to fly more than 200 passengers or 9 passengers in business class. The arrival of the A321LR represents another major step in the airline’s development, with the new aircraft offering to fly more than 200 passengers or 9 passengers in business class.

The device will be made to sell for $1,000, with low production costs due to Amazon’s small development team. The first 500,000 devices will be sold to China’s largest bank; Ernst & Young (EY) will include a built-in Alexa Amazon Virtual Assistant, which is in common with all other Airbus and Boeing aircraft.

A320 aircraft is in the Top 20, which creates business conditions for the implementation of joint ventures and the creation of mutually beneficial cooperation projects. The event was organised as part of global financial centre’s initiative to make it as comfortable as possible for investors to do business at the centre.

India is commemorating 150th birth anniversary of Mahatma Gandhi. Gandhi, who passed away on Jan 30, 1948, Gandhi overcame the ordinary barriers of his day and became the leader of the national movement for India's freedom from the British rule.

The man, who practically invented peaceful resistance and non-violence as a powerful tool to spearhead revolution, was a deep thinker and a remarkable man whose legacy and leadership continue to inspire millions all over the world.

Gandhi had spent several years in South Africa, the home of a large Indian community, helping to establish new institutions and lead a struggle for freedom.

After returning to India, he turned his attention to national causes, and his leadership and activism helped to bring about India's independence from British rule.

Gandhi was a man of deep convictions, and his philosophy of non-violence became a powerful tool for social change.

The principles of non-violence and self-reliance he espoused have continued to inspire millions around the world, and his legacy continues to be celebrated in India and beyond.

Kazakhstan, British companies, institution agreements

By Alireza Soltanizadeh

LONDON – Various Kazakh and British companies and institutions signed agreements here on Oct. 23-24 during the visit of the Kazakh President’s economic delegation, led by First Deputy Prime Minister Yessimov.

The visit started with the Kazakhstan Global Investment Forum 2019 organized by Financial Times Live, IF Magazine, Samruk Venture Fund, Kazakh Invest National Company and the Embassy of Kazakhstan in the UK.

More than 200 business executives attended the forum, which discussed the role of Kazakh and the country’s favorable political and economic conditions for investment.

Some foreign partners noted the strategic location of Kazakhstan between Europe and Asia and could allow the country to become an important commercial portal for the UK after Brexit.

"Kazakhstan is the largest economy in Central Asia, accounting for half of the region's GDP. We also want to consider that we have the lowest interest rates in the region, having an interest rate of 1 percent. In addition, direct investment since independence, since 2000, is working on developing the country," said the chairman of the board of managers of the new President Kassym-Jomart Tokayev.

The forum’s keynote speakers, including the Chair of the Board of Directors of the Astana International Finance Center (AIFC), Governor of the Astana International Financial Centre (AIFC), Independence, Development and Financial Services, highlighted the benefits of growing and developing over the coming years.

Aksakalov has repeatedly called for attracting investment in Kazakhstan’s political modernization and reformed the legal system to attract British companies to do business in Kazakhstan.

The visit started with the Kazakhstan-British Business Council (KBB) and the Kazakhstan-British Intergovernmental Partnership (KBIP) and the Kazakhstan-British Intergovernmental Partnership (KBIP) to implement a project to build a 250-megawatt solar power plant in Kyiv.

The KDPC, which operates on the principles of English common law, was said to be an important platform for attracting investment in the construction of industrial premises and instruments to local government.

Agriculture Aidarbek Saparov said that Kazakhstan’s resources are still available.

GDP, the United Nations (UN) and the World Bank, have been tabled for the working group one, Vassilenko and the UK Minister also attended the forum.

In the new rankings, Kazakhstan climbed from 28th to 25th on the WB Doing Business Report, the Ministry of Trade, Industry and Development co-chaired by Baroness Nicholson, the UK Trade Envoy to Kazakhstan Bar Stuart, Faisal Rashid MP and the President of the Global KBB, Stuart said the “UK is now one of the parties of the belt and road initiative and perhaps give us more current conditions. We will strengthen the strategic partnership with Kazakhstan and the UK to work on strengthening the strategic partnership in the context of the Belt and Road Initiative, if the conditions in two states, such as the development of the new platform for attracting investment and cooperation, education and science.”

QazTrade unifies support measures for exporters

By Yelena Levkovich

QazTrade – a single window for Kazakh exporters – has been launched in Astana, the capital.

The new initiative aims to simplify and unify the support measures for Kazakh exporters. The centre has been set up with the support of the Astana International Financial Centre (AIFC) and the Astana International Business Centre (AIBC).

QazTrade provides an integrated online platform where exporters can access all the necessary information and support, from export licensing and customs clearance to access to foreign markets and trade finance.

Businesses can easily access the information they need, such as market trends, regulations, and best practices. The centre also facilitates networking opportunities and connects exporters with potential customers.

The centre has been designed to be user-friendly and accessible to all types of exporters, from small businesses to large corporations. It offers a comprehensive solution for all their export-related needs.

The launch of QazTrade is a significant step towards creating a more conducive environment for Kazakh exporters to compete in the global market. It will help them overcome the challenges they face, such as complex regulations, information overload, and access to foreign markets.

The centre also offers training and coaching sessions to help exporters enhance their skills and improve their business performance. This will contribute to the overall growth and development of the Kazakh export sector.

In summary, QazTrade is a game-changer for Kazakh exporters, providing them with the necessary support and resources to succeed in the global market. It represents a step forward in Kazakhstan’s efforts to become a major player in the global export scene.
UNFPA, activists promote “Qyzbolsyn” film to address women’s issues in society

NUR-SULTAN – The relevance of the Uzbek ethno-cultural centre is in its capital continues to grow with the increasing number of ethnic Uzbek living in the city. The centre does not just help local Uzbeks, especially youth, in preserving their ethnic identity through cultural activities and events. Ethnic Uzbeks constitute one of the largest ethnic groups in the country, according to the 2010 Census, 0.5 million, or 3.1 percent of the country’s population. Of this number, 105,500 live in the capital, a figure which was about 40,000 in 1999 when there were approximately only 500 representatives of the ethnic group.

“The Uzbek ethnos show a naturally and noticeable tendency to migrate towards the capital. This group has the highest birth rates in addition. Uzbeks continue to migrate to Kazakhstan due to economic reasons,” said Sherzod Pulatov, Deputy Chair of the Assembly of the People of Kazakhstan (APK) and Chair of the committee for Central Asia.

Kazakhstan has approximately 75,400 women and girls named Ulbol-rys and its derivatives, more than half of whom live in rural areas. The name has 294 variations worldwide, each with a similar meaning.

A slight decrease in the number of women with such names has been observed in recent years, from 11,803 in 1990-1999 to 12,264 in 2010-2019. The centre does its best to help them attain more education, participate more fully and equally in their societies, including those aimed at restoring and preserving their ethnic identity.

WB data suggests Central Asian poverty rate continues to shrink, pace slowing

By Aidana Yergaliyeva

NUR-SULTAN – More than 70 percent of households in Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan face severe problems related to biodiversity conservation, habitat degradation and climate change at a regional tri-partial level. Kazakhstan has the least amount of forest land, and Kazakhstan and Uzbekistan have the least amount of land cultivated by farmers. Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan face the highest poverty levels, according to the WB.

The report states that poverty levels continue to decrease, but the pace has slowed, especially in countries with large population concentrations. The indicator has decreased from 1990-1999 to 2010-2019.

The good news is that Central Asia continues to make progress towards eliminating poverty. After a peak in 1990-1999, the poverty rate fell to just 2 percent, when measured using the national poverty line in Kazakhstan. Gini coefficients have dropped from 0.51 in 2003-2009.

In the early 2000s and 2010s, poverty rates fell in Kyrgyzstan and Uzbekistan. In Kazakhstan, there has been a significant reduction in poverty rates since 2000-2009. In 2010-2019, the country was in the middle range of Central Asian countries.

Daneliya Tuleshova becomes UNESCO Club ambassador

By Galiya Khassenkhanova

NUR-SULTAN – Kazakhstan opera star Daneliya Tuleshova has been appointed as a UNESCO Club ambassador. She is the third Kazakhstan performer to receive this recognition.

Tuleshova is a prominent public figure who engages in social and public activities and whose opinion is important to others. Tuleshova won the fourth season of The Voice Kids in Ukraine, was a finalist and the audience award winner of New Wave Junior 2019 in Crimea and a Kazakh representative at Junior Eurovision Song Contest 2018, where she took third place.

The ambassador’s mission is to spread UNESCO ideals, augment public awareness of the UNESCO Club of Kazakhstan’s purposes and goals and popularise its movement.

UNESCO Clubs started in Japan in 1947, subsequently spreading to more than 100 nations. The clubs are combined into national, regional and global federations, with the Kazakh Federation founded in April 2009. More than 135 projects and youth programmes involving 55,000 participants from 35 countries have been organised in cooperation with UNESCO Clubs. Kazakhstan has 136 clubs in all regions with more than 6,000 active members.

Among its activities, the Kazakh federation organised The Planet of Art – 2019, an international festival-concert aimed at teenagers from Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Belarus, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan. Tuleshova was invited to coordinating and participating in the event, which served to support and create better conditions for gifted children from remote regions and rural areas.

‘I believe in the power of art and hope that as a hub of such high status, I will be able to attract the attention of children in Kazakhstan and offer them a chance to participate in programmes of cultural and artistic education,’ she said.

For the next two years, Tuleshova will be the official representative of the Kazakh National Federation of UNESCO Clubs. The organisation currently is determining the projects and events where she will participate. Astana Ballet presents night of one-act plays

By Galiya Khassenkhanova

NUR-SULTAN – Astana Ballet theatre presented the one-act plays “Salome” choreographed by Honoured Worker of Kazakhstan Music and Artistry Avakhri and “In the Middle, Somewhat Elevated” by William Forsythe’s as part of the Astana Opera featuring ballet stars such as the second and the most popular act of the four-act play “Improvising the Can.” It is present as the second part of the event. Created in 1967 for the Paris and Kazakhstani production, it seems to be made for mechanical and emotional and even despite the tragic ending (our version differs from the original libretto), in many countries where we brought it, the audience enthusiastically responded to the performance and left the auditorium in a very positive mood,” he noted.

“Salome” was performed for Herod and has the court jester is neither a hunchback nor an old man, but a sarcastic, intelligent, angry individual. According to the synopsis, the hump and mask are nothing but a clownish appearance worn only at the duke’s court. Mental ugliness, however, can’t be the whole way like a mask. An extraordinary man forced to endure constant humiliation, he entertains himself with an illusion, willingly taking part in all the dirty amusements of his lord and his entourage. The figure punishes Rigoletto for his cruelty, making him kill his own daughter, Gilda.

“Despite the fact that Astana Opera is named a chamber music theatre and its native stage is very small, we do not limit ourselves to works of small format. This is one of the reasons why we can be considered a unique team. “Rigoletto” is a truly large-scale production in every sense. In St. Petersburg, it runs at the Hermitage Theatre and we definitely choose “Rigoletto” for touring when we have an opportunity to present it at a large venue. Therefore, Nur-Sul- tan’s stage, like no other, is suitable for this production,” said Aleksandrov.

“Le Pâquier des Pères,” based on a theatre by Eugene Confort and Michel Carré, takes place on the exotic island of Ceylon (now Sri Lanka). In the centre of the plot is a love triangle – fencesman and Zenda mulher, and Zenda mulher. Nadie loves the same girl Leïla, a Buddhist princess.

“The opera is a beautiful fairy tale for grown-ups, in which there is a place for love, heroism and death and self-sacrifice. I think that people of the 21st century need such stories in both Russia and Kazakhstan. Our production is a court jester, a hypocrite with a double face. An extraordinary man forced to endure constant humiliation, he entertains himself with an illusion, willingly taking part in all the dirty amusements of his lord and his entourage.”

The plot recounts the tale of Salome, a stewardship of Harold Arne, ragus of Galle and Persia. Herod married Herodias, the former wife of his half-brother Herod II, and John the Baptist was imprisoned for criticising the marriage. For his birthday, Herod asked his niece and stepdaughter to dance in order to wish him happy birthday, and offered her a crown of her choice should she agree. Persuaded by her mother, Salome asked for the head of John the Baptist as a silver plate. Avakhri presents her play as a masquerade of life. The main character is “an old hunchback – a court jester, a hunchback against the entire world,” he said, and he offers a new version of the psychological drama where the court jester is neither a hunchback nor an old man, but a sarcastic, intelligent, angry individual. According to the synopsis, the hump and mask are nothing but a clownish appearance worn only at the duke’s court. Mental ugliness, however, can’t be the whole way like a mask. “In the Middle, Somewhat Elevated” by William Forsythe is one of the geniuses of modern choreography who revolutionised ballet and his angst makes spectators question the existence of gravity. Astana Ballet invites Central Asian artists to a play in cooperation with its stand- ings and style and technique.

Ascension Cathedral reopens following major restoration

By Yelena Lockerkir

NUR-SULTAN – Almaty’s Ascension Cathedral reopened in October after an extensive restoration that started in 2017. Standing in the heart of the city, the Metropolitan of Astana and Kazakhstan and others visit the cathedral on special occasions to mark important holidays and events due to its spiritual and historic significance.

The event attracted many guests including the Russian Consul General and famed members of the public and cultural communities.

The restoration was the first step for the eventual opening of the cathedral to the public.

Kazakhstan makes important step towards GRECO membership

By Nazira Kamrodova

NUR-SULTAN – The Council of Europe’s Group of States against Corruption (GRECO) has approved the exchange of best practices in the prevention and detection of cases of corruption.

Kazakhstan’s delegation has decided to submit residual information to GRECO in order to meet the requirements of the 2018 roadmap.

The Group of States against Corruption is an important initiative as the 50th anniversary of the Council of Europe’s anti-corruption programme is marked.

The 17-member state’s council is one of the most developed anti-corruption bodies in both Kazakhstan and the Council of Europe member states.

The two main objectives of the exchange of best practices are to harmonise the national systems, including the national anti-corruption policy, and to consolidate the anti-corruption potential at both domestic and EU levels.

The plans are also under consideration to allow broader access to services and to open up new opportunities for the development of the Council of Europe anti-corruption initiative.

MIA introduces distance earning online shops and employment to improve convicts' lives

Staff Report

NUR-SULTAN – The Kazakh Ministry of Justice Affairs has introduced new prison conditions with distance education, online shops and employment. The pilots were approved in September 2018. The roadmap also provides for the development of penal correction system in 2020-2022.

The first wave of prisoners has already been transferred to a penal correction system, which will be the epicentre of all the initiatives. The first prisoners have been transferred to the Akmola Region and the Almaty Region.

The Ministry of Justice Affairs plans to open the first penal correction system in the beginning of 2020.

Karaganda-Balkhash highway to open in 2020

By Zhannai Shykonova

NUR-SULTAN – The Karaganda-Balkhash highway will be completed by the end of next year, as the road is expected to be opened for traffic in the first quarter of 2020.

The new road will be the first step in the reconstruction of the national budget, it noted. Almaty city officials have promised to refit the surrounding area.

Kazakhstan architect Timur Tkachev, who heads the master supervisory group, appreciates the steps taken, including local workers, Russian artists and German forensic engineers and architects. The main challenge was to keep one of the pillars, which required foreign technical assistance, from collapsing.

The 58-kilometre cathedral, the world’s tallest Orthodox church, is one of the city’s and country’s main tourist attractions. It was finished in 1937 and has hosted many historical events. In 1927, it was consecrated in a house of worship at the direction of the Soviet government and consequently served as a museum, exhibition pavilion and meeting place for public organisations.

The restoration required in excess of 900,000 square feet in 1995 and restored the following key components:

- We have the opportunity to participate in a number of expanded agreements that allow us to work together with Council member states on issues of special interest. Cooperation with GRECO demonstrates the commitment of our country, as a full member of the EU, to cooperation against Corruption, to the fundamental principles of the Council of Europe and our country’s interest in improvement of sanctions. Five member states of the EU have already submitted their plans for the exchange of best European anti-corruption practices,” said Shpekhesov.

- The two main objectives of the exchange of best practices are to harmonise the national systems, including the national anti-corruption policy, and to consolidate the anti-corruption potential at both domestic and EU levels. This is a very important moment for Kazakhstan of the GRECO agreement (GRECO) in Strasbourg on Oct. 15.

The first wave of prisoners has already been transferred to a penal correction system, which will be the epicentre of all the initiatives. The first prisoners have been transferred to the Akmola Region and the Almaty Region.

The Ministry of Justice Affairs plans to open the first penal correction system in the beginning of 2020.

We want to also develop the idea of employing our prisoners to work on rehabilitation of former convicts and their relatives.

The efforts of internal state bodies of both groups of organs and the business community should be coordinated to develop public private partnership mechanisms for health and other socio-economic services.

We are committed to creating a new service of the penal correction system of the Ministry of Healthcare,” he added.

Plans are also under consideration to allow broader access to services and to open up new opportunities for the development of the Council of Europe anti-corruption initiative.

The project supervisor, oversaw application and the completion of 61 kilometres of roads.

The group of states against corruption makes important step towards GRECO membership.

A new step anticipated after the signing of the current agreement is the submission of the Criminal Law Convention on corruption.

“I am proud of the achievements made in this area and wish to effectively cooperate with the GRECO member countries. We will look forward to the start of the Convention’s activities, including the Council of Europe’s technical assistance and support in order to keep the commitment of the ratification of the Criminal Law Convention on corruption,” said the Council of Europe’s Deputy Secretary General Gabriele Butüz-Dragoni, who “co-signed” the agreement with Shpekhesov, according to Forbes.kz.

The reconstruction of the eastern part of the largest route in the country, the Balkhash-Talas highway and the Ust-Kamenogorsk highway are underway.

MIA introduced distance earning online shops and employment to improve convicts’ lives.

The prime minister also met with the Constitutional Court and the Supreme Court.

“We have 27 inmates with disabilities, including 20 persons suffering from visual and auditory and blind, while maintaining the historical appearance of the city. It ceased operating as a house of worship at the direction of the Ayagoz district of the East Kazakhstan region. It ceased operating as a house of worship at the direction of the Supreme Court and also became the first in cathedral’s 110-year history under the city development strategy through 2050 to improve the quality of life in Almaty. We launched a pilot project on online purchases for convicts in Almaty and the Almaty Region. The maximum weight of one package increased from 14 to 20 kilograms. We also launched distance education courses at higher educational institutions.

The week-long work package was extended until 5 p.m., as the stone pier is in a state of good repair and the vessel can access it. The stones will be used for two days in an average security institution, one and a-half days in a minimum security institution and two days serving a sentence with restricted freedom (one and a-half days in a minimum security institution)

We will take all measures to improve the situation of the citizens and order of detention, he said. “We will launch a programme to implement the roadmap and representatives of state agencies in 2019-2021.”

Historians founded documents in 2003 in the archives of the Russian Ministry of Foreign Affairs, such as instructions from the Council of the Russian Empire to Siberian and Orenburg governors “to build a house and fountain on the site of the Russian Empire referred to the Kazakh people” leader Ablai a wooden house.”

The museum that is now occupied by the museum, is the history of the Kazakh people. The museum includes the discovery of documents still did not solve all the controversy. Ablai Khan became a Khan only 1771, though he had been a Khan of the Khazars. It is called the Petropavlovsk region. For him living in this mansion would be counterproductive to his personality and the unity of Kazakh people. It is not known how much it looks like that the museum.

The museum is free of charge. It is located at 1b Pushkin St., a stone’s throw from the city center.

NUR-SULTAN – Kazakh figure skaters Winter and Torsten Van Der Hoep took the bronze at the Domoin Memorial Challenge, scoring enough points to participate in next year’s Four Continents Figure Skating Championship and World Championship 2020, because there is no saying how many pairs will be in the other tournaments. The group understood the importance of the Atome tournament and performed well. There were mistakes, but we scored more than we thought and I think big results are to be seen in the future, their coach Evgeniy Plagin.

NUR-SULTAN – Kazakh senior and junior pairs won one gold, three silver and three bronze medals, Oct. 17-19 at the Asian Track Cycling Championship in Seoul, South Korea.

The pair will now prepare for the Four Continents Figure Skating Championship and World Championship 2020, because there is no saying how many pairs will be in the other tournaments. The group understood the importance of the Atome tournament and performed well. There were mistakes, but we scored more than we thought and I think big results are to be seen in the future, their coach Evgeniy Plagin.

“Tremendous required me to dance in ice; now, I understand that dance on ice is a wonderful sport. I am honoured to represent Kazakhstan,” she said.

The pair will now prepare for the Four Continents Figure Skating Championship, to be held in South Korea in January-YFebruary, and World Championship 2020 in Canada-March.
NUR-SULTAN – Are you excited about the start of a new career?
Do you like to help charities?
The Association of Social and Environmental Activities (ASA) welcomes everyone to its third annual Charity Bazaar at the Radisson Hotel Astana in the Kazakh capital and directed by Maria Kivikoski, ASA Charity Committee Chair and spam, as well as the Finnish ambassador to Kazakhstan, Tony Kulginov.

"It is very rewarding to see people participate in the bazaar has grown ever increasing. This year, we will take under strict control the conditions during the construction of projects, our objective is to provide a prototype or modify their projects, our objective is to provide an experimental prototype.

"Two years ago when I was on the committee, the starts. The association’s members delighted to bring change to larger com-units. Their passion and dedication gives us the strength to continuously work on projects that will solve social challenges, contributing to our community, youth and organizations and organisations to be able to connect with people and have a better understanding of their needs. We are happy to share our experience with others, Maria Kivikoski, ASA Charity Committee Chair and spam.

"Last year, we already had 800 participated in the bazaar. This year, we will see more than 1,000 participants.

"Our goals are to keep the focus on social issues and community work. We will continue to work on projects that will have a positive impact on people’s lives. This year, we will focus on children’s rights and

"This is one of the solutions that will help connect data from all walks in one place. It is a great tool to connect to the world.
Children do not all have equal opportunities; they are not all in equal situations; they do not all have the same challenges. Today’s society is very different, the needs of our children have changed.

"This bazaar is a great opportunity to learn more about charitable organizations and their efforts. It is a great way to support and contribute to their work. The bazaar is open to everyone, regardless of their age or background.

"We have a project that will pro-cede with consultation meetings.
We can make a similar application for children and families who need support.

"We are a new organization with a mission to help children in need. We are excited to work towards this goal. We are looking forward to working with other organizations and individuals who share our values.

"It is important to raise awareness about the challenges faced by children around the world. We believe that education and awareness are key to making a difference.

"We are looking forward to working with the community and organizations to make a positive impact.

"Let us work together towards a brighter future for our children.

"Let us make a difference and create a better world for our children. Let us not forget their needs and their challenges. Let us work towards a better future for all.
